9 Reindeer Lane  The North Pole

Dear Jeffrey,

I am writing this special letter to help you rekindle your childhood memories of Christmas. Although many years have passed since your tender youth, this letter is intended to inspire your youthful thoughts and childhood dreams. You may be an adult now, but I know you haven't forgotten the joy and wonder of Christmas you experienced as a child. It's still there; it's just tucked away deep inside your heart.

Now, having said that I must tell you, this is an intervention. It has come to my attention that you are on my Naughty List. Of course you can imagine how much it surprises me to see your name there. I know you are a wonderful father and husband, so I can only imagine what caused this naughty behavior. Both of your beautiful children have made the Nice List and even your wife managed to make the Nice List this year.

Jeffrey, this is unacceptable—I am afraid that I cannot fulfill your Christmas wishes of fishing gear, a bass boat, and especially not that deep sea fishing trip when I come to see you in San Angelo, Texas. As you know the Naughty List means you get a lump of coal. However, someone in your household has assured me that it will not be necessary to send you coal because they are more than willing to provide spankings. Jeffrey, I hope that you will mend your naughty ways before Christmas. My wish is to see you back on the Nice List soon and that you have a spanking-less Merry Christmas.

Your Friend,

Santa
